

Columns & Pilasters

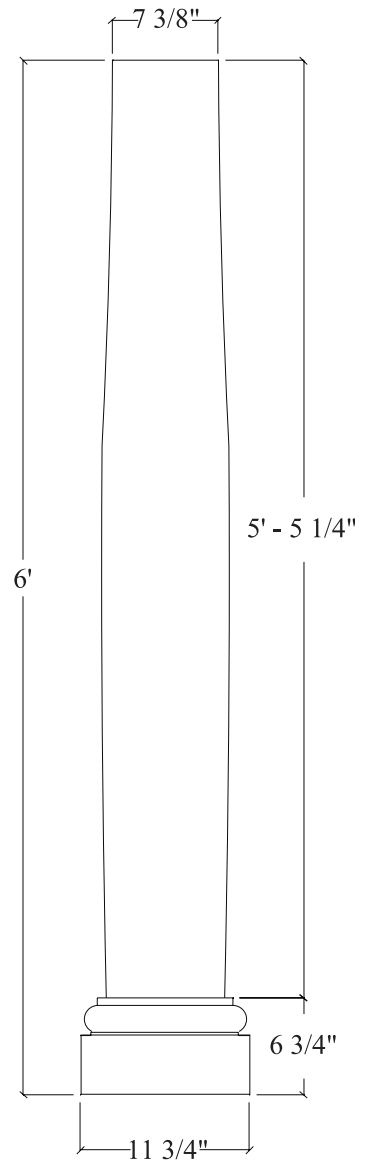

HYDE PARK columns reflect select historical periods in classical architecture. Most columns are designed to meet the proportional requirements of many of today's buildings. Frequently it may be necessary to fabricate columns to meet exacting dimensional specifications based on a project's interpretation of these classical orders.

Pilasters replicate columns but are only half a column that will be installed flat against a wall. Whereas columns are supporting structures, pilasters are for decorative purposes. Pilasters can be used in simulated entrances, door openings, and fireplace mantles. All of our pilasters match our columns with complimentary capitals and bases that may be applied to the pilasters.
